PVH High pressure axial piston pumps with low noise

PVH high flow, high performance pumps are a family of variable displacement, inline piston units that incorporate the proven design, quality manufacturing techniques and operating features of other Vickers piston pumps, but in a smaller, lighter package.

The PVH series has been specially designed to meet the 250 bar (3625 psi) continuous duty performance requirements of new generation equipment designs.

These are efficient, reliable hydraulic pumps, with a selection of optional controls for maximum operational flexibility. Designed specifically for strenuous application, they provide the productivity gains and controllability improvements desired in earthmoving, construction, machine tool, plastics, and all other energy-conscious markets. As with all Vickers products, these pumps have been fully laboratory tested and field proven.

Description:

A- Basic Pump:

Figure 1 shows the basic construction of the PVH series piston pump. Major parts include the drive shaft, housing, yoke, rotating group, valve plate, control piston, bias piston, valve block and compensator control. The PVH series replaces the pintle bearing assembly with saddle bearings, which reduces weight and eliminates the roller bearings that added to maintenance time and overhaul costs.

B- Pump Controls

Two common pump control types are available. One type is the standard "C" compensator control that limits pump outlet pressure to a desired level. The other type is the "CV" pressure limiter/load sensing control. Now available is the "IC" (Industrial Control) which can be used as a load sensing compensator, remote compensator control and electro-hydraulic control. These limit pump outlet pressure and also regulate pump displacement to match load requirements.

Principles of operation:

A- Pump operation:

Rotation of the pump drive shaft causes the cylinder block, shoe plate and pistons to rotate (See Figure 2). The piston shoes are held against the yoke face by the shoe plate. The angle of the yoke face creates a reciprocating motion to each piston within the cylinder block. Inlet and outlet ports connect to a kidney slotted wafer plate. As the pistons move out of the cylinder block, a vacuum is created and fluid is forced into the void by atmospheric pressure. The fluid moves with the cylinder block past the intake kidney slot. The motion of the piston reverses and fluid is pushed out of the cylinder block into the outlet port.

B- Pump controls:

Pressure Compensator Controls “C” & “CM”

The standard “C” and low pressure “CM” compensator controls are internally pilot operated, spring offset, 2-way valves. Their purpose is to limit system pressure to a desired level by varying pump displacement. These controls only provide the flow required to satisfy the load demand, while maintaining a constant preset pressure.

During operation, load or system pressure is continually fed to the bias piston. The function of the bias piston is to maintain the yoke at a full pump displacement position. Load or system pressure is also fed to the compensator spool chamber within the control. Pressure within the compensator spool chamber acts upon the spring force of the compensator spring.

When load or system pressure is below the pressure setting of the compensator spring, the compensator spool remains offset and the pump continues to operate at full displacement. When load or system pressure approaches the compensator pressure setting, the compensator spool will start to move and overcome the compensator spring force. Fluid will then meter into the control piston area. Since the control piston area is greater than that of the bias piston, the control piston pushes the yoke towards minimum pump displacement. The compensator control continues to meter fluid to the control piston, adjusting the pump displacement, and pumping only enough fluid to satisfy the load demand while holding the system at a constant pressure.

When load or system pressure exceeds the compensator setting, the compensator spool shifts towards the spring chamber area. A maximum amount of fluid is then metered to the control piston area, causing the yoke to shift to minimum pump displacement.

When system pressure decreases below the compensator pressure setting, the compensator spool returns to its original position and the yoke returns to maintain maximum pump displacement.

The compensator is available in two pressure ranges. The “C” spring has an adjustment range of 70–250 bar (1015–3625 psi). The “CM” spring has an adjustment range of 40–130 bar (580–1885 psi).
